Humanities and Neuroscience

Founded the Humanities and Neuroscience Project at the Italian Academy for Advanced Studies in America in 2001.

Initiated program enabling postdoctoral fellows at the Academy to work in neuroscience laboratories at Columbia.

In association with members of the above program, organized major conferences at the Italian Academy on Art and the New Biology of Mind (March 24, 2006), Art and Vision Science (June 13, 2006), Mirror Neurons, Embodied Simulation and Aesthetic Experience (April 24, 2007), Vision, Attention and Emotion (March 25, 2008), Neurotechniques: New Approaches to Understanding Mind, Brain and Behavior (December 3, 2010), Brainbeat: Frontiers in the Neuroscience of Music (December 5, 2011), The Default Mode Network in Aesthetics and Creativity (February 10–11, 2014), and a series of seminars, workshops and symposia on the potential of the neurosciences for the understanding of culture and behavior.

Founded global cross-disciplinary program at the Italian Academy which by now has included over 250 post-doctoral researchers in all fields of the Humanities and Social Sciences, as well as selected scientific fields, notably Neuroscience, Physics, Astronomy, and Nanotechnology.

Created and obtained funding for a Professorship and Laboratory on Neuroscience and the Humanities at the Warburg Institute, London; continuing membership of the BIAS Project (Body and Image in Art and Science) established by Prof. Manos Tsakiris and myself at the Institute.

Historical Preservation and Conservation

President, The Friends of Liberty Hall. Leader of project to save Liberty Hall, Machiasport, Maine. Major example of American Italianate architecture (1873) overlooking site of first naval battle of the American Revolution (1775). Founded 501(c)(3) organization, The Friends of Liberty Hall, to raise funds to restore building. Raised $1 million in 2½ years; supervised works in conjunction with TTL architects and Consigli, Portland, Maine, and a variety of engineering and construction firms.

Founded the International Observatory for the Conservation of Cultural Heritage at the Italian Academy in 2014 (after 2014, see www.italianacademy.columbia.edu).
